Hero Search Casting Reference Material: Ray Sullivan

Status: Colonel
Gender: Male
Organization: U.S.A.F. / O.S.S.
Base: United States
Age: 35 - 45 years of age
Abilities: Ray is the government liaison for Patriot. He gives the Patriot his assignments, occasionally traveling with him to help in his battles. Ray is a strong, patriotic, military man.

Ray Sullivan smiles as TOM DEARBOURNE (a.k.a. PATRIOT) steps up to the bridge. He doesn't turn to acknowledge the man as he approaches, and Tom slides up to the rail beside him.

Ray sullivan

Morning, Tom. Or is it late evening? Hell, I can never tell these days. Hitler has us jumping at everything and the clock never seems to stop.

PATRIOT

Well, you wouldn't have dragged me out of bed without offering me a cup of joe without a good reason: so, what can I do for the OSS?

RAY SULLIVAN

As you know Hitler's been running around the world looking for anything having to do with the occult that might help him win the war. We've been doing the same just to keep it out of his hands. You've retrieved a few of the items yourself.

PATRIOT

So, what do you need me to recover?

RAY SULLIVAN

This one's bad, Tom. We intercepted a Nazi Communique from a U-boat parked near the Louisiana Continental Shelf. We couldn't destroy it, or it would tip our hand that we know.

PATRIOT

So, what is it?

RAY SULLIVAN

Are you familiar with Sun Tzu?

PATRIOT

The Art of War. Yeah, I don't know a military strategist that isn't.

RAY SULLIVAN

The original book was written on bamboo slips, bound in wood and was written, at a guess, sometime in the sixth century BC.

PATRIOT

So, you want me to get the original book.

RAY SULLIVAN

No, we already know where it is, and it holds no specific importance save for historical value.

PATRIOT

So, what am I retrieving then?

RAY SULLIVAN

I'm getting there. Long about one thirty-three BC, during the Han Empire, the emperor took the offensive against the Xiongnu incursions of his northern territories. This became the Han-Xiongnu War that lasted over two hundred and twenty years.

PATRIOT

Hell of a pissing match.

RAY SULLIVAN

Exactly. In around one hundred BC, China invented paper. Here comes the good part. In 90 BC, the emperor asked his wushen to find the original bamboo slips and have them written into a leather-bound book. The wushen did this and then cast spells on the book.

PATRIOT

Are you telling me that some caveman Huodini cast magic onto a book and made, I don't know, some kind of spell book?

RAY SULLIVAN

That's exactly what I'm saying.

(Pause)

Tom, you know as well as I do that this kind of thing exists.

PATRIOT

Yeah, I know. Just trying to make myself feel better because I know where this is going.

RAY SULLIVAN

The wushen finished the book although it took over two years. When completed legends say you could feel the power radiating off the book. So much power was supposedly put into it, that the wushen was said to have aged 50 years and had gone blind and deaf. He died clutching the completed book.

Patriot

So, you want me to get the book?

RAY SULLIVAN

Still explaining here.

PATRIOT

Make it quick, I need some joe and eggs.

RAY SULLIVAN

Before the emperor could use the book, his daughter, who was in love with a xiongnu man, hid it God only knows where. Or so we thought until a few hours ago. Hitler sent for his best team to a small fork in the Black Dragon River where teams have found signs that point to the book. Orders are no one is to touch it if they find it and to wait for Totenkopf and the okkulte Wissenschaftsteam.

PATRIOT

They must have some serious proof if they're bringing in those guys.

RAY SULLIVAN

Find the book, Tom. A dossier will be on the plane.
Archeologist Doctor Kathryn Langford will accompany you. She's the OSS's Chinese history expert.
